On Saturday, 25 February 1950, the Rumanian National Committee voted to assign various functions and activities to individual committee members. . . . At the suggestion of General Nicolae Radescu, it was decided to appoint, at a future time, a Commission of Reconstruction of Rumania. On 25 February, a Commission to study interim measures to be adopted between the liberation of Rumania and the reestablishment of parliamentary Government was appointed. . . . Caranfil reportedly informed General Radescu that he would advise the Rumanian officers in Paris to form an association and place it under the patronage of King Mihai. General Radescu did not present to the Committee a budget of funds supplied him by Nicolae Malaxa. It is reported (without confirmation) that Radescu is angry because Malaxa has refused to give more money. Ion Zissu has stated (no confirmation) that Malaxa has been giving Radescu $7,000 monthly.
